OLD ENGLISH POETRY. The Knavarie of the Worlde, sette forthe in homelie verse, by Cornelius May, from

"The Seven Stars of White," 1647. Ab me, throughoute the worlde Doth wickedness abounde! And well I wot on neither hando Can honestic be founde.

The wisest man in Athens Aboute the citie ran,
With a lanthorne in the light of Taio To find an honeste man;

And when at night he sate him downe To reckon on his gaines, He onely founde—alack, poore man! His labour for his paines.

And see thou now shalt finde Alle men of alle degree Striving as if their onely trade Were that of cheating thee.

Thy friend will bid thee welcome, His servantes at thy calle— The dearest friend he has en carthe Till he has woune thy alle;

He will play with thee at dice Till thy golde is in his hande, He will meete thee at the tennis court Till he winde alle thy lande.

The brother of thy youth, When ye shared booke and bedde, Would eat himself the sugar-plums, And leave the barley bread;

But growing up to manhoods His heart is colder grown; Aske in thy neede for barley bread And he'll give thee a ston

The wife whom thou dost blesse, Alack, she is thy curse-A bachelor's an evil state, But a married man's is worse.

The lawyer at his deske Good lawe will promise thee. Until thy very last groat Is given for his fee.

Thy baker and thy brewer Doe wronge thee night and morne; Had thy miller, he doth grind thee In grinding of thy corue.

Thy goldsmith and thy jeweller Are leagued in knavish sorte, And the elwande of thy tailor It is an inche too shorte.

Thy cooke bath made thy dish From the offals on the shelfe, While fishe & fowle and savourie herbe Are served to himselfe.

The vallet thou dost trust, Smooth-tongued and placid-faced, Dothe weare thy brillianties in his capps And thou wear'st his of paste.

Alack! thou canst not finde Of high or lowe degree, In cott or courte or cabinett,

A man of honestie. There is not in the worlde, Northe, southe, or easte, or weste, Who would maintaine a righteous cause Against his intereste.

Ah me! it grieves me sore, And I sorrowe night and daic, To see how man's arch enemie Doth leade his so ule astraie.

THE DRUNKARD'S GRAVE. I saw a youth in his father's hall, Nhose joy-lit eye and aspect gay Show'd a heart yet free from passion's thrall;
Light as the billowy ocean's spray;
Generous, virtuous, fair and brave,
Yet he fills a drunkard's grave.

I saw, by the midnight taper's gleam, A tireless student, pensive, pore O'er hist'ry's page, or some noble theme,
That poets have sung in classic lore.
Yet the green willow doth o'er him wave:
Alas!—he sleeps in the drunkard's grave. I saw an old man, whose locks were gray, Silver'd by care and the length of years; Unmoved by these signs of speedy decay, And by his children's frequent tears. Ah! they may weep, but cannot save That erring man from a drunkard's grave.

The young, the old, and the brave are there, The proud and the humble together sleep; The father caught by Intemperance's mare. And his son, who once could o'er him weep. The rich—the poor—the free—the slave, Go alike to the drunkard's grave. Established Services As as the orange and

The Newspaper. - A newspaper taken in a family seems to shed a gleam of intelligence around. It gives the children a taste for reading-it communicates all the important events which are passing in the busy world; it is a never failing source of amusement; and furnishes a fund of instruction which will never be exhausted. Every family, however poor, if they wish to hold a place in the rank of intelligent beings, should take at least one newspapaer. And the man, who, possessed of property sufficient to make himself easy for life, and surrounded by children eager for knowledge, is instigated by the vile spirit of cupidity and neglects to subscribe to a newspaper, is deficient in the duties of a parent or a good citizens, and is deserving of censure of his intelligent neighbors.

GAMBLERS BEWARE .- The Legislature of Indiana has passed a severe law against gambling. The law punishes all persons convicted of being professed gamblers, and who travel through the country with gambling apparatus, by imprisonment in the penitentiary for from one to five years, and disfranchisement, not exceeding a term of five Tears.

Nor Ban .- There are some old tricks which are played over and over again, and still gull the public. A fellow far up town, gave notice, a few nights ago, that he would give an exhibition, showing "how to make pair of shoes in two minutes;" admittance sixpence. Having filled a large cellar with anxious spectators, he came upon the 'stage' with a pair of old boots in one hand, and a knife in the other. Taking his seat upon the "kit," he cut off the tops of the boots, opened them in the top, punched holes through the sides, and put strings in; thus perfecting a pair of shoes in the shortest space of time."—N. Y. Whig.

The following witty reply of a witty young lady is not bad. "I have been troubled with weak eyes for more than ten years,' said Dr. B. "and I am not able to tell the cause." "Can't you?" said Miss F., "I can." "What is it?" "Because they are set in a weak place," was the reply.

"Won't you write some lines on me?" said a scoffer to a roguish young poet.— "Certainly sir," answered the other with a polite bow.

As soon as the other's back was turned he chalked the word "sheep stealer" between his shoulders.

HISTORY OF THE WORLD .- Whatever portions of man's history we study, we shall and that the weak and the wicked are the most numerous, and the pure and the good appear only here and there, like iceberges, which, in the midst of the salt sea, preserve the sweetness of their waters.

JAMES WARDLAW, c. c. r. Clerk's Office, Dec. 4, 1837

Dr. John Sappington's ANTI-FEVER PILLS.

Are offered to the public as a certain and effectual remedy for feeers of every description or to some peculiar condition of the system; and with slight variations, such as I have made, the treatment should be the same. I am also of opinion that his must be the prevailing theory of the day, or low is it that physicians treat fevers throughout with Calomel and a few other deplesions.

Description and treatment of fevers, viz:-1st. Intermittent or Ague and Ferer. 2dly. Bilious Ferer. 3dly. Typhus or Nervous Ferer, and all other fevers by whatever name they may be called.

1st. Of latermittent or Ferer and Ague. I consider all fevers of an intermittent character which cool off once in twenty-four hours, whether the which cool off once in twenty-four hours, whether er preceded by a chill or not; or whether the fever and chill rise and continue together; or if there be no chill at all. Sometimes fever of this character continues 24 or 48 hours without intermission, and sometimes it occurs only every third day. Nine tenths of the fevers of this state, and day. Nine tenths of the fevers of this state, and most other states of this union, partake more or less of this character; and in all their various appearances the treatment should be the same.— This medicine cures by correcting the bile, giving tone and energy to the stomach and bowels, and thereby communicating health and strength to the whole system. It is also possessed of such singular and admirable properties, that it does not sicken the stomach not operate on the bowels as a purgative. It breaks the fever in from 24 to 45 hors, during which time the patient feels up sensible benefit from it, but finds himself suddenly well without being conscious of its mode of operation. There is no arsenic or any defendants in this case James L. Hodges Richard Hodges, John or John W. Hodges, Walter or Wat. Hodges James Stone and Chizabeth his wife, Jesse Williams and Lucy his wife. James Tomson or James Townes as d Polly bis wife, Wiley Cammins and Franky his wife, and Sarah Hodges, he irs of William Hodges, ir, and of William Hodges, sen, reside beyond the limits of this State. Ordered that they do severally appear and plead, answer or demur to the above mentioned bill, within three months from the date of the publication hereof, or the saidbill will. cine. It is entirely harmless; women in any situntion may take it with perfect safety; and if double the quantity herein recommended was taken, no bad effects would be produced by it.—
The increased demand for this medicine, has induced me in future to prepare it only in the form of pills, as the transportation of vials is both inconversient and unsafe. For grown persons or children who prefer taking it in a liquid form, it can be prepared conveniently by any person in the following manner, pound twelve pills well, put the preparation into a vial, and pour two common sized table spoonfulls of whiskey or water to it—spirits of any kind are best. Any other ter to it spirits of any kind are best. Any other quartity of the liquid may be prepared at the same time, by increasing or lessening the quantity of the medicine in the same proportion as described above.

Treatment ---If the patient prefers taking a puke or purge before he commerces the use of this medicine, I have no bection, but it is rarely this medicine. I have no objection, but it is rarely if ever necessary. He can drink cold water or make use of any kind of diet suitable for a sick person, without the least danger or suffering the slightest inconvenience from it. A grown person will take for a dose a pill or common sized to a spoonful of the liquid every two hours, both day and night, ontil the disease is broken: children 8 or 10 years old will take 30 or 40 drops, and those three or four years old will take 15 or 20 drops, and infants 3 or 4 weeks old will take from 3 to 6 drops, repeated and continued as recommended for grown persons. But as persons are very subject to a relapse or return of this disease, whether they are cured in this or any other way, it would be well to continue taking three or four d. a day until the strength and complexfour d. — a day until the strength and complex-ion are restored, and particularly if the person ions already had several relapses. One box will core two persons of a common attack of ague and fever. Before the liquid is taken the vial should be well shaken. 2dly Of Bilious Fever. This is a lacre obsti-mate and dangerous disease them.

nate and dangerous disease than intermittent or nate and dangerous disease than intermittent or ague and fever, there are generally three or four days indisposition previous to the onset of this disease, and frequently chilly sensations for a day or two after. When this disease is properly formed it rarely yields to any treatment under 8 or the days and sometimes which larger. to days, and sometimes much longer.

3dly, Of Typhus or Nervous Fever. This is Sidly, Of Typhus or Nerrous Ferer. This is still a much more obstinate and dangerous disease than bilious fever, and apparently more mild in the commencement. It often continues fifteen or twenty days with scarcely any remission or intermission, with great prostration of body and depression of mind. It may be well to observe that Typhus favor is most common in the winter. that Typhus fever is most common in the winter and spring, and Billious fever in the summer and fall. In the first stage of all fevers, it is common for the tongue to be covered with a whitish coat, and if the fever is not broken and runs into the second stage, it is apt to assume a yellowish brown color, and in the third and last stage of fevers, (and particularly if they are of a high grade and malignant character) the tongue is apt to assume a dark brown color, of different degrees of moisture; sometimes it is exceedingly dry; in this stage of the disease the patient is often senble of a hot or burning sensation in the stomach. The symptoms of these two diseases are so much alike in their first stage that physicians often difin as to their real character, nor does it matter materially, because the treatment of both should e pretty much the same, with this exception, that typhus fever does not require nor will it bear as much strong sickening medicine as bilons fever.

Treatment In the first stage of the two last diseases, i give a puke or one or two small doses of calomel or some other medicine that will operate upon the stomach and bowels. Under any circumstances I object to giving more strong medicine, and an decidedly of opinion that re-peated doses of such operating medicines do more harm than good. After thus operating on the stomach and bowels (and even without it) the stormer and nowers (and even without it) if several days have elapsed and my patient become weak. I commence with the pills and drops, and give a dose every three hours, that is eight doses in each twenty four hours, with a regular use of Virginia snake-root, or some other sweather than the snake shear and as heart and the sheart state. ing tea, such as hysne sage or balm. Should the patient suffer much with pain in the head. the patient suiter much with pair in the nead, back or elsewhere, give twenty or twenty-five drops of landanum at night, if it be a grown person (children should take less corresponding with their ages) and should be become much debilitated from a continuation of the disease, and particularly if the hamis and feet become cold, give ticularly if the hands and feet become cold, give draught of toddy or wine every three or four h traught of today of whice every three or four-hours until he recovers; continue all the time to use the pills or drops as recommended. The diet should be light, and taken only a little at a time and often.

Bleeding is so seldom required in these disea ses that it is scarcely necessary to mention it; if it ever is resorted to it should be in the early tage of them.

Blistering is sometimes useful and rarely if evor injurious; but it should be chiefly resorted to in the last stage, when there is delirium or lasting coldness in the extremities. In the treatment of either of these diseases, I would prefer the bow-els to be in rather a costive than laxative condiion. But should the bowels be too inactive, tion. But should the bowels be too inactive, give broken doses of salts or oil, or open them with injections, and if they should be two laxative, give six or eight drops of laudanum two, three or four times a day, until the loosness is restrained. My experience in the treatment of yellow fever has not been very extensive, but it is neither more nor less than the highest grade of billous fever, and should be treated pretty much in the same way.

JOHN SAPPINGTON, Saline County, Missouri. Price $1 50 per box.

Numberless certificates of this medicine, have been tendered, but I have thought fit to insert only the following from the Rev. Joel H. Haden, I. TERRY, c. E. E. D. Register of the Land Office for the Spring Field district. Mo., which seems to embrace the opin ions of many in different sections of the country.

Having travelled much over the states, both AM of opinion that all fevers are a unity of disease from the middest intermittent up to the highest grade of yellow fever, and that the different denominations of fevers, are simply owing to some particular state of the atmosphere or to some peculiar condition of the system; and with slight variations, such as I have made. I have known many labouring under fever and ague, cured in the course of female 1. cer and ague, cured in the course of from 24 to 18 hours; and all cases of fever in which I have known it used, it has never failed to effect a cure, so far as known to me, in a shorter time than any medicine I have ever known used — I do therefore recommend it to all persons laboring under fover, as the best remedy known to the public.
